About your development

Development typically falls into one of the following categories:

Infill Development is the development of a residential or commercial property in an area that has access to our existing water and sewer infrastructure, either by simple connection, or by extension of the water and sewer mains.

Greenfield Development is the subdivision of undeveloped or unserved land into residential or commercial sites. It often requires construction of new major water or sewer infrastructure (excluding small main extensions)

Major water or sewer infrastructure typically includes water tanks, water pump stations, sewer pump stations, pressure reducing valves or major pipelines.
